Scene 2.2: Meet Jenny Daltry

Jenny Daltry: It never ceases to amaze me and every time…every time I meet them, I feel I learn something new.

Narrator: Just who is Jenny meeting, and what is she learning?

Jenny: There's a number of reasons for protecting the Antiguan racer. Firstly, it's an important part of the actual ecosystem of Antigua. It's one of the top predators. And without it, the whole, the rest of the wildlife will not be the same. But for me, I think the most important reason is that it's our fault that the snake has become so rare. It's the people that put the mongooses here, it's the people that put the rats here, it's the people that are killing them, and destroying their habitat. And I think we have a moral obligation to try to undo the damage we've done…because we can do it. We can save the snake, and, you know, we have a duty to try.

Narrator: Ever since she was little, Jenny has been trying to save all kinds of misunderstood snakes. Do you think it's important to protect misunderstood animals?
