Who Am I?

“Make sure to be passionate about whatever it is you get into . . .”
—Jack Andraka

1. How would you describe the people in this photo? How do you think they might describe themselves?

2. Describe yourself in five or six words. Now think of five or six words that you would never use to describe yourself.

3. What are you passionate about? Why?
On the last page, you described yourself in five or six words. Would other people use those same words to describe you? Discuss. Then listen and read. TR: 2

For teenagers, life can seem exciting and confusing at the same time, can’t it? As a teenager, you’re on your way to becoming an adult. It’s a time of important changes and important questions.

A lot of these questions are about identity, or who you are. You’re an individual, but you’re also a product of your family life, your social environment, and your culture. Your identity includes your beliefs, your values, and your actions. You learned your values from your family, but, as a teenager, you may become less interested in what your family thinks. You may choose to spend more time with other people whose values and personalities are like yours. That’s natural.

Then there’s personality, or the qualities that make you different from other people. If you love parties and are enthusiastic about meeting lots of new people, you’re probably outgoing and self-confident. If you get excellent grades in school, chances are you’re organized and responsible. If you’re energetic or adventurous, you might like hiking, or getting together with friends to explore a cave! If you’re optimistic, generous, and patient, you might enjoy helping by spending time with animals at a shelter, or by participating in a local clean-up event.

Personality is tricky. You might assume that everyone sees you the way you see yourself, but that isn’t always true. Friends may laugh at your stories and think you have a great sense of humor, but your brother might think you’re just odd. You may see yourself as ambitious because you’re determined to get what you want, but others may feel you’re stubborn, or unwilling to take advice. You may feel self-conscious and shy, while other people may think you’re unfriendly. You may think you’re fair, but you may still seem unreasonable or unkind to a friend.

Understanding yourself and how others see you can really be a puzzle!

Learn new words. Listen and repeat. TR: 3

Work in pairs. Make another list of five or six words that describe you, using the new vocabulary. Then make a list of five or six words that describe your partner. Compare your lists. Do you agree with your partner’s description of you? Why or why not?
4 Read and write the words from the list.

By the time Jack Andraka was 14 years old, he was very ambitious about science. Jack really wanted to focus on cancer research. He came up with a cheap, fast way to detect a type of cancer. When he first proposed his idea, some adults thought that Jack was being too determined, but he was stubborn to prove them wrong. He stayed determined and entered his idea into an international science fair. Jack won! Now he feels more self-confident. People have even asked him to be on TV because of his optimistic personality and creative ideas.

5 Learn new words. Listen for the words. Write each trait next to the correct example. Are these words positive or negative? Decide. Then, listen and repeat. TR: 4 and 5

fair odd self-conscious stubborn

1. You never change! Just listen to me for once.
2. You put salt and pepper on your ice cream? Wow!
3. I like our music teacher. In her class, everyone gets a chance to play.
4. Oh, come on. Nobody is looking at you. Let’s dance.

6 Choose an activity. Work in pairs.

1. Together think of a famous person, such as a singer, actor, or Internet personality. Separately list as many descriptive words as you can about that person. Are any of your words the same? Do you agree with your partner’s description?

2. As a student, you’re an expert on teachers. Think about teachers you’ve had, and write words to describe them. Look at the positive qualities you both listed. Then work together to write a description of your ideal teacher.

3. Write the letters in your partner’s name going down the side of a paper. Then write a word that describes your partner for each letter. When you’re finished, compare your name poems. Do you agree with your partner’s description?

7 Listen. How do the speakers compare and contrast their little brothers? Write the words and phrases you hear. TR: 7

Dave: My aunt and uncle are visiting this week.
Nina: You don’t seem very happy about it.
Dave: I’m not. My aunt is always saying, “You’re your uncle Jack!”
Nina: Well, are you and your uncle?
Dave: No, we’re very different.
Nina: Is he funny? Optimistic?
Dave: No way. He never gives me anything, not even on my birthday.

8 Read and complete the dialogue.

Dave: My aunt and uncle are visiting this week.
Nina: You don’t seem very happy about it.
Dave: I’m not. My aunt is always saying, “You’re your uncle Jack!”
Nina: Well, are you and your uncle?
Dave: No, we’re very different. him, I’m active and outgoing. All he does is watch TV.
Nina: Is he funny? Optimistic? Generous?
Dave: No way. ! He never gives me anything, not even on my birthday.

9 Work in pairs. Take turns. Use a coin to move. (Heads = 1 space; tails = 2 spaces) Compare and contrast as instructed.

10 Work in groups. Compare and contrast your parents. Are you like or unlike your parents? Do your classmates’ parents seem like or unlike your own parents?
Learn new words. Read about young chefs, and listen to their conversations. Then listen and repeat. TR: 10 and 11

Everyone loves cooking shows! The chefs are usually self-confident and energetic, but they’re not always patient or organized, are they? (That’s part of the fun!) They’re almost always very competitive as they cook against each other. They want to win by making the best food they can!

On some shows, teen chefs compete to see who’s the best cook. These teen chefs can be surprisingly cooperative, even while they’re competing. They’ve made friends, and they’re interested in what one another is doing. Of course, one chef may be jealous of another chef, but in the end many of them are still helpful and kind to each other as they compete. They’re open-minded enough to know that only one person can win, but all of them can be friends—and great chefs.

Listen. Match the questions to logical answers. Write the letter. TR: 9

1. _____  a. Yes, it was. And we finally won!
2. _____  b. Yes, I have to be. I’m a teacher.
3. _____  c. No, she didn’t. She said she was sick.
4. _____  d. He really is. He never stops!
5. _____  e. Yes, she can. And the guitar, too.

Yes, she does. She’s really good!
No. She’s too shy.

National Geographic Fellow
Chef Barton Seaver

Barton Seaver is the most interesting chef around, isn’t he?

Yes, he really is. He has great ideas about food.
Have you ever wondered why you are the way you are? What makes you different from, say, your brothers and sisters?

People have asked these questions for centuries, and researchers are trying to answer them. One idea they’re exploring is that birth order influences the person we become. In general the oldest child is described as confident, organized, dutiful, and determined to get what he or she wants. Oldest children are seen as born leaders, people-pleasers, and perfectionists. Because they’re the oldest, their younger brothers and sisters sometimes see them as bossy, or too willing to tell other people what to do.

The middle child may be described as being competitive in order to get more attention. They sometimes feel that their family ignores them because they are in the middle. Because middle children tend to avoid conflict, they can be flexible and easygoing. They may also be seen as secretive by members of their family. They are usually more influenced by their friends than by their family, perhaps because they get more attention from their friends.

The youngest child is described as the baby of the family. They can be spoiled by their parents, who spend a lot of time with them and often give them what they want. For this reason, their brothers and sisters sometimes get jealous. Youngest children enjoy being the center of attention, and they are seen as outgoing, open-minded, and likely to take risks.

What if you’re an only child? Many people think that a child with no brothers or sisters grows up wanting lots of attention. Some think they’re selfish, or unwilling to share with others. But because they spend so much time around adults, they’re also described as confident, determined, and responsible.
VIDEO

Before you watch, discuss in pairs.
Look at the photo. What do the group members’ clothes say about their identity?

Work in pairs. The video you are going to watch is called What Makes Up an Identity? From the title, predict the main idea of the video. Circle the correct letter.

a. The video will discuss your identity in comparison to that of your family and friends.
b. The video will talk about things that you like and do that help shape your identity.
c. The video will suggest ways you can make yourself better.

Watch scene 1.1. While you watch, check the factors that the video says are important parts of your identity.

☐ sports  ☐ clothes  ☐ gadgets  ☐ food
☐ music  ☐ house  ☐ pets  ☐ other people

After you watch, work in pairs. Circle the correct letter.

1. According to the research, music can make us happier and _______.
   a. smarter  b. more  c. more organized  determined

2. A personal style is important to help you _______.
   a. fit in  b. stand out  c. both a and b

3. One in _______ teens is obsessed with wearing designer clothing.
   a. two  b. four  c. twenty

4. Nearly all teenagers associate _______ with happy memories.
   a. music  b. clothes  c. food

5. Parents help _______.
   a. influence our world view  b. choose our friends  c. choose our music

Choose an activity.

1. Work independently. Choose a classmate or teacher to interview about what makes up his or her identity. Write a profile of this person and share it with the class.

2. Work in pairs. Write a description of your clothing in relation to your identity. Have your partner do the same. Then compare your results. Does your partner have the same view of your style as you do? Discuss. Then switch roles.

3. Work in groups. Create a “happy memory” cookbook. Survey at least five classmates about meals that give them happy memories. Have the classmates describe the meals. Take notes, and then compile the information into a cookbook to share with the class.

Work in pairs. The video describes four main areas that make up your identity. Discuss each of those areas in your own life.

Discuss in groups. At the end of the video, you’re asked, “What else makes you you?” Answer the question in your group. Then share your responses with the class.
When we compare and contrast two people or things, we use phrases such as the following:

WRITING

Work in pairs. Write down three things that you don’t like to happen. Use it in your sentences. Then share them with your partner.

1. It makes me a little angry when people interrupt me in a conversation.
2. ____________________________
3. ____________________________
4. ____________________________

Listen. How is it used? Write the number. TR: 15

1. to introduce weather
2. to introduce time
3. to introduce distance
4. to introduce emphasis

Work in pairs. Write three things that you like to happen. Use it in your sentences. Then share them with your partner.

1. I like it when people give me compliments about my appearance.
2. ____________________________
3. ____________________________
4. ____________________________

Work in groups. Make the cube. Take turns tossing the cube and completing the sentences.

It drives me crazy when my friends don’t return my texts!

Read the model. Work in pairs to identify the parts of the writing. How does the writer compare and contrast? Underline the words or phrases.

I come from a large family, and I share personality traits with several family members. But it’s clear to me that I’m most like my grandfather, although we’re different in some ways, too.

My grandfather and I both like to spend time outdoors. We both enjoy riding our bikes and watching sports. We’re adventurous, too. I really like to go fishing with my grandfather. We’ll catch our dinner together, then cook and eat it at our campsite. We both love nature. We’re alike in that way. We also enjoy working in his garden to grow fruits and vegetables.

It’s a different story when winter comes. Unlike my grandfather, I love being outside in the snow. I like to have snowball fights with my friends, but he likes to sit by the fire and read. Sometimes he and I play cards, although I don’t really enjoy that very much. I’m too energetic to sit for so long! On the other hand, when we play one of my video games, I have fun because I’m competitive. My grandfather isn’t competitive at all. He’s also sort of slow!

But it doesn’t really matter to me what we do together. I like being with my grandfather and spending time with him. We’re a good fit!

Work in pairs. How are the writer and his grandfather alike? How are they different? Do you think they’re more alike than different? Explain.

Write. Compare and contrast your personality with that of a family member.

“Why not you? Why can’t you come up with the next great innovation or cure?”
—Jack Andraka
National Geographic Explorer, Inventor

1. Watch scene 1.2.
2. It took Jack Andraka 4,000 tries to find a protein he needed for his experiment. It took him 200 tries to find a lab research scientist who would accept his project. What three words best describe Jack?
3. How hard do you try to get something you want or need? Do you give up easily? Would you try 200 times? 4,000 times? How would you feel if you were unsuccessful so many times?

Make an Impact

A Plan and conduct a survey about personality traits.
- Decide which traits you want to ask about. Include positive and negative traits.
- Write the survey.
- Interview ten people. Record and report the results.

B Plan and write a report on other factors that influence personality.
- Search the Internet for information on your topic.
- Write your report.
- Present your research to the class.

C Write an advice column.
- Write a letter to an advice columnist about a problem that young people face.
- In groups of three, read your letters aloud. Then discuss the problem and give advice. Take notes.
- Compile your group’s questions and responses in an advice column. Make copies of your column to share with the class.
