Articles and Determiners (any, some, a lot of, many, a few)

Articles and determiners are words we use to give information about nouns. They can tell us that ...

- there is a small amount of a count noun (a few).
- there is an amount of a count or noncount noun (some).
- there is a large amount of a count noun (a lot of, many) or a noncount noun (a lot of).
- we don't know how much of a count or noncount noun there is (any) (questions).
- a count or noncount noun is not there (any) (negative sentences).
- we are thinking of a specific thing or one of many things that are the same (the, a/an).

B Read the sentences. Choose the correct option.

1. We can go and see (a / the) town hall if you want. It's just down the street.
2. Are there (any / the) nice cafés in this part of town?
3. Would you like to try (a few / some) ice cream from this shop?
4. If you want to go in the museum, you need to buy (the / a) ticket over there.
5. There aren't (a lot of / some) green spaces in our city.
6. (Any / Many) tourists like to visit the old railroad station.
7. There are (a few / many) concerts on next month. One in the first week and two in the second week.
