Real and Unreal Conditionals

Conditional sentences are sentences with if in them. There are different types of conditional sentences.

The first conditional/future real conditional (if + simple present, will/won't + verb) describes a situation that is real or possible and its result in the future.

The second conditional/present unreal conditional (if + simple past, would/wouldn't + verb) describes a situation that is not real now, but you can imagine it and its result.

In both types of conditional sentences, the if part can come before or after the result.

B Complete the conditional sentences with the correct form of the verbs in parentheses.

1. If I _____ (have) all the money in the world, I would help people who need help.
2. If the manager _____ (like) me, he'll ask me to come for a second interview.
3. If you know everything in this book, you _____ (do) well in the exam.
4. If I _____ (invite) Cameron to my party, would he come?
5. The beaches _____ (be) much cleaner if everyone took their trash home with them.
6. Faisal _____ (call) his friends if he can't see them during the summer vacation.

C Note down the things below about this week. Then write one conditional sentence about each thing.
